

Edwin Tham spoke at the English law Week

Edwin Tam, a partner at the law firm Danilov and Partners, spoke at the English Law Week in Russia on November 11th in St. Petersburg. The session took the form of a debate, during which speakers discussed why English law remains the most demanded when concluding deals involving Russian parties.

English Law Week in Russia is a traditional event organized by the Law Society of England and Wales in conjunction with the Bar Council of England and Wales. This year marks the 10th anniversary of English Law Week in Russia.
